

From: Devin Allman
Sent: Tuesday, May 15, 2018 9:18 AM
Subject: Weekly Cybersecurity Tips

Weekly Cybersecurity Tips

Do not use random USB drives!

What would you do if you found a USB thumb drive in your office parking lot?

Unfortunately, research has shown that most computer users will plug a lost-and-found USB drive into their work computer without a second thought – this is bad news for employers.

Random USB drives are enticing because you never know what type of information they may contain – top-secret intelligence or simply a virus?

Plugging an unidentified USB drive into a computer, whether work-related or personal, is never a good idea. In the likely event that a USB drive contains a virus and not classified information, plugging it into a computer could cause catastrophic damage to your corporate network or to your personal device.

– The IT Department

LANCASTER COUNTY
South Carolina

Tickets: support.lancastercountysc.net
E-mail: support@lancastercountysc.net